His strategy principles have remained true and profound until today. Many world-renowned military leaders such as Emperor Napoleon, Chairman Mao Zedong, General Isoroku Yamamoto, General Giap Nguyen Vo, and General Douglas MacArthur claimed to have mastered and successfully applied these principles to gain the upper hand and win their victories. Beyond warfare, these timeless and universal principles have been broadly applied in modern business, politics, and other competing arenas. World-class gurus of competitive strategy and corporate management like Michael Porter and Peter Drucker have also been inspired and influenced by these principles. Today, business men and women around the world are turning to The Art of War for inspiration and advice on how to strategically plan and advance their position, how to win and succeed, and how to achieve their goals and accomplish their mission in the rapidly changing and highly competitive world of today. Indisputably, The Art of Bing Fa is the certain path to success. However, mastering and applying it on a daily basis can be challenging and time-consuming, because no translation or translator has ever turned this unique knowledge into a simple and sensible system until now. This book aims to set a new foundation for turning this knowledge into a simple and practical system anyone can quickly learn and immediately put into use. This book aims to set a new standard that will inspire a new generation of strategy practitioners. This book is complete and unique by itself, although it is one of the ten series that belongs a grand collection known as Bing Fa Masterpiece Collection. This book is based on a complete compilation of The Art of Bing Fa in traditional Chinese from Taiwan, rather than an incomplete version in simplified Chinese from China. The entire treatise is reorganized and restructured systematically as well as well preserved to maintain the integrity of the original strategy system of Sun Tzu. The system consisted of designs and principles representing formulas and equations which were often misunderstood and misinterpreted by many translators. This book is the only book in the world that has 360 strategy principles, making The Art of Bing Fa easy to learn and accessible. Each principle comes with an ID number which makes easy for making references. Each Chinese character is paired with one untuned Mandarin Pinyin, giving learners a sense of how each character is pronounced. This Pinyin serves as a simple method for expressing key ideas and concepts. This Pinyin also helps establish a new benchmark for translating and helps make possible for The Art of Bing Fa to be translated into any languages. Each chapter begins with the Bing Fa Model and chapter introduction detailing the chapter role, number of characters, designs and principles, and all themes that make up an entire chapter. Please note that this book is designed to provide learners with a basic foundation for learning The Art of Bing Fa and help prepare them for the next series. While pursuing his DBA seven years ago, James Sonhill had discovered the parallel between The Art of Bing Fa and the modern business world. This discovery has helped him achieve his self-realization. Since then, he has made this philosophy his top priority because it gives him clarity of perspective, knowledge, and deep understanding of the complex world around him and also helps him unify both his academic experience and his real-world business experience. This edition serves as a cornerstone for everything he represents from writing and giving strategy lectures to negotiating and making business deals. Translation has a long history in China. Down the centuries translators, interpreters, Buddhist monks, Jesuit priests, Protestant missionaries, writers, historians, linguists, and even ministers and emperors have all written about translation, and from an amazing array of perspectives. Such an exciting diversity of views, reflections and theoretical thinking about the art and business of translating is now brought together in a two-volume anthology. The first volume covers a time-frame from roughly the 5th century BCE to the twelfth century CE. It deals with translation in the civil and government context, and with the monumental project of Buddhist sutra translation. The second volume spans the 13th century CE to the Revolution of 1911, which brought an end to feudal China. It deals with the transmission of Western learning to China - a translation venture that changed the epistemological horizon and even the mindset of Chinese people. Comprising over 250 passages, most of which are translated into English for the first time here, the anthology is the first major source book to appear in English. It carries valuable primary material, allowing access into the minds of translators working in a time and space markedly different from ours, and in ways foreign or even inconceivable to us. The topics these writers discussed are familiar. But rather than a comfortable trip on well-trodden ground, the anthology invites us on an exciting journey of the imagination.

The defining geopolitical contest of the twenty-first century is between China and the US. But is it avoidable? And if it happens, is the outcome already inevitable? China and America are world powers without serious rivals. They eye each other warily across the Pacific; they communicate poorly; there seems little natural empathy. A massive geopolitical contest has begun. America prizes freedom; China values freedom from chaos. America values strategic decisiveness; China values patience. America is becoming society of lasting inequality; China a meritocracy. America has abandoned multilateralism; China welcomes it. Kishore Mahbubani, a diplomat and scholar with unrivalled access to policymakers in Beijing and Washington, has written the definitive guide to the deep fault lines in the relationship, a clear-eyed assessment of the risk of any confrontation, and a bracingly honest appraisal of the strengths and weaknesses, and superpower eccentricities, of the US and China. This book views the Belt and Road Initiative (BRI), a bold and all-encompassing 21st century global effort by China, with unprecedented perspectives. The BRI could be summarised as a 'revitalization' of China's ancient land-based and maritime silk roads, but it should be noted that its impact on China and the world stands on the foundation of omnipresent economics and how China transforms its mindset in the 21st century. Though initiated by China, the BRI's implementation has been a many-to-many effort from the start. This multi-regional and multi-national effort is distinctly different from the one-to-many effort of the Marshall Plan. The two meaning-defining chapters of this book, 'Omnipresent Economics: The Belt and Road Initiative Underpinning' and 'Supercontinent, Neo-Renaissance and Cultural Communications: The Millennium Mindset Transformations Induced by the Belt and Road Initiative', have made it abundantly clear that the BRI discussions presented are unique. The discussions of this book could shed new light on the BRI, a long-term and profound initiative by China, which in today's global discussions and debates, are entirely confined to geopolitical and economics arenas. This is Chinese version of Adventure of Couzan. Readers have the opportunity to read it in Chinese Language.
